MEMORANDUM FOR DIRECTOR OF CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE

SUBJECT: Reorganization of the Directorate for Intelligence in DIA

1. Recently we have completed a major reorganization of our Directorate for Intelligence which is responsible for the DIA production of general intelligence. Among the goals of the reorganization were three which relate directly to the intelligence objectives forwarded by you to the President concerning the production of reliable, timely and comprehensive information on foreign military capabilities.
2. First, the new organization was designed to take advantage of new capabilities that will exist through the modernization of the National Military Intelligence Center in the Pentagon. This will improve the current military intelligence support provided by DIA to the national level.
3. Second, the resources assigned the responsibility for basic intelligence production were given centralized management and organizationally separated from our current intelligence production. This is to improve our support of the requirements generated by the Strategic Arms Limitation and Mutual Balanced Force Reductions negotiations, the needs of those involved in net assessments, development of the intelligence base for national estimates, and direct support of the Services and U&S Commands.
4. Finally, the reorganization involves an increase in our analytical work force through a reduction in management. The new organization is converting 15% of its management billets into analytical positions. We are aware, as you are, that these actions do not solve the critical production manpower problems facing DIA due to the imbalance of collection and production resources, but they do represent actions that DIA can and should take to aid in their resolution.
